

THE CLIMATE CRISIS

Andrew Yang's 6 Strategies

Make polluters pay

"The country runs on the almighty dollar, truthfully. It does not run on doing the right thing by us or our planet."

Carbon Fee:

Make polluters internalize the cost of their pollution by paying a carbon fee

Upgrade our measures

"We can't fall into this trap, this false dichotomy that what's good for the planet is bad for the economy."

American Scorecard:

Upgrade from GDP to a scorecard that includes environmental sustainability

Reverse the damage

"It's not enough to do less of the bad. We have to do some of the good, to rebuild the ecosystems we're harming."

Geoengineering:

Invest in carbon capture and solar-radiation technologies

Wash out lobbyist $

"This is the brutal truth in our society: There's the people on one side, and the money on another."

Democracy Dollars:

Wash out lobbyist money by giving voters a $100 voucher to support candidates

Think beyond the U.S.

"The U.S. is only 15% of global emissions. We have to make renewable energy more competitive (for developing countries)."

Power the World:

Make it cheaper for other countries to buy sustainable energy tech from the U.S.

Get people's heads up

"It's very hard to focus 10 years in the future if you're worried about next month's rent."

Freedom Dividend:

$1,000/month to every adult American to "take the boot off of people's throats"
